and there the governor had many callers during the evening, among whom were Charles Bard and Dr. Patrick Cassidy.

Around the sides of the hall were sunbursts at stated intervals with shields between, while the boxes were covered in red and blue with flags on the front. The steel framework of the drillshed roof was gally decorated with streamers of red, white and blue, with a hundred or more yacht flags and Old Glory. On the front of the balcony in electric lights was spelled out "Fifth Co., C. A. C.," which brilliantly lighted the hall, together with the arc lights and those in the sign at the west end.
